Introduction

Hull is a geographically small city and travel by commercial public service buses is available across the city, providing adequate access for almost all post-16 learners.

Local authorities do not have to provide free or subsidised post 16 travel support but do have a duty to prepare and publish an annual transport policy statement specifying the arrangements for the provision of transport or other support that the authority considers it necessary to make to facilitate the attendance of all persons of sixth form age receiving education or training.

All young people carrying on their education post 16 must reapply for travel support.

‘Sixth form age’ refers to those young people who are over 16 years of age but under 19 or continuing learners who started their programme of learning before their 19th birthday (years 12,13,14).

Local authorities also have a duty to encourage, enable and assist young people with learning difficulties / disabilities to participate in education and training, up to the age of 25.

This policy uses the term ‘Post 16’ to include both learners of sixth form age and those with learning difficulties/disabilities up to age of 25.

This policy document specifies the support that Hull City Council (the council) considers necessary to facilitate the attendance of Post 16 learners receiving education or training.

Education or training refers to learning or training at a school, further education institution, a council maintained or assisted institution providing higher or further education, an establishment funded directly by the Education Skills Funding Agency, learning providers delivering accredited programmes of learning which lead to positive outcomes and are funded by the council, for example, colleges, charities and private learning providers.

Neighbouring local authority, governing bodies of schools, further education institutions, education and training providers and Loudmouth and Hull Parents Forum have been consulted on this policy.

Aims and Objectives

The aim of the policy is to provide high quality transport services as efficiently, economically and sustainably as possible to ensure that students get to school, college or training provider in a reasonable time, travel in a safe environment and arrive ready to study.

The council’s Corporate Plan 2018-2022 aims and objectives which are taken into consideration when assessing transport/travel support from:

- Supporting Children and Families - Improve outcomes for looked after children and those with special educational needs or disabilities.

- Championing education, training and employment - Make Hull a place of learning by supporting people to develop skills and knowledge to gain and improve their employment opportunities.
- Ensuring financial and social inclusion - We will endeavour to ensure education, skills and training provision is accessible with flexible support for those need it most.
- Improve access through digitally enabled services - We will modernise the council's online services, to enable residents and visitors to select online functionality for interacting with the council and provide access to the skills and technologies that enable active participation.
- Developing new ways of working in partnership – Continue to improve services, including championing equalities and diversity, through external challenge and review including learning from Ofsted and Care Quality Commission inspections and Local Government Association peer challenge.
- Making the best use of our assets and budgets - Move towards digitising all documents sent to the council to support smarter and flexible ways of working to reduce the need for documents to be physically stored.

Along with the aims and objectives from the Hull Children, Young People and Families Plan, 2018 – 2023:

- Young people are ready for life and work – As part of our statutory responsibility, work with colleges, schools and training providers to make sure sufficient suitable education, learning and skills provision which meets the need of the city is available.
- Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) – Home to School Transport, medical needs, efficiency and independence

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Why isn't post 16 transport free for everyone, in the same way as it is for school age pupils?

A: Local Authorities are expected to make reasonable decisions about what support should be available based on the needs of their population, local transport infrastructure and the resources they have available. It is, however, recognised that the cost of transport can be an issue for some young people and to help with this there is further supply available. Information about what support is available locally is available from the local authority in their post-16 transport policy statement. The statement can be accessed on the LA website or through the postcode search at gov.uk.

The Bursary Fund for 16-19 year olds has the flexibility to help meet transport costs for these young people who need this support most. You can find out more about the 16-19 Bursary Fund here.

In addition, most transport companies also give some form of discount for young people such as discounted fares or subsidised travel passes.

Some education and training providers also provide subsidised or free transport for example college buses, and travel subsidies from private training providers.

Q: What support is available for young people with special education needs?

A: The post-16 transport duty also applies to young people with special educational needs aged up to age 25 (who have an EHC plan and started a course before their 19th birthday). Local authorities' post 16 transport policy statements must include specific arrangements for these young people to ensure they have the necessary support. The transport needs of young people with special educational needs should also be reassessed by their local authority when a young person moves from compulsory schooling to post-16 education so that the appropriate support is put in place accordance with the LA's post-16 transport policy.

Q: How do the duties apply for people with Special Educational Needs and Disability (SEND) as they turn 19?

A: The duty a young person is assessed under is dependent on when they started their current course. If a young person with SEND started the course before their 19th birthday then they are assessed under the 16-18 duty. If they have started a new course after their 19th birthday then they are assessed under the adult duty.

Young people will qualify for free transport under the adult duty where the local authority assesses that in order to attend education or training they require transport arranged by the local authority, such a specialised vehicle or minibus. If the young person's requirements are a personal travel budget, mileage allowance or public transport pass then this does not need to be provided free by the local authority as they have not put the travel arrangements in place. However, in these circumstances the local authority has discretion to pay some or all of the travel expenses.

Young people can also receive free transport if they are attending institutions outside of the HE and FE sector and started after their 19th birthday in residential provision if the provision, boarding accommodation and transport were all arranged by the local authority. Again, in these circumstances the local authority has discretion to pay some or all of the travel expenses.

Q: When will the contribution need to be paid?

A: Invoices will be raised at the end of September.

Included with the invoice will be a form for you to set up a payment plan throughout the academic year.
